KELIHER FIGHTS TO STAY HERE

Scores Plead for Becker

RULING ON NEW TRIAL TODAY

NEW YORK, July 28.—Justice John Ford will hand down a decision on Charles Becker's application for a new trial this afternoon, his secretary announced today.

The secretary also stated that Justice Ford was of the opinion that it was unnecessary to call Becker or any other person as witnesses before deciding the main issue.

No hint was given as to the nature of the forthcoming decision, but lawyers who have followed the case closely expressed a belief that Becker would win his fight for a new trial.

LETTERS ASK NEW TRIAL.

Scores of letters begging him to give Becker another chance were received by Justice Ford this morning. One was from Dr. William Butler, head of the State Normal School at Williamsport, Pa. Its principal assertion was "The man is not guilty."

"In your mercy, be just," read another. "Think of Whitman and his aspirations."

In the death house at Sing Sing Becker, genuinely hopeful, is bursting with eagerness to get more statements before the public.

Becker yesterday talked of the conduct of his case for the first time in a long while. He said that he felt that he had made a mistake in not going on the witness stand at his second trial and that the outcome of the present hearing would show whether it was a mistake not to bring out the Tim Sullivan story earlier. It was said by one of his sympathizers that Becker seemed angry at allusions in connection with the Sullivan matter to the effect that he was "dragging a dead man in to shield himself."

But although Becker talked as hopefully as usual, as spent part of his time working on a new statement to the public. This time the statement is not to be given out unless he goes to the electric chair, and then not until he has gone to the chair, according to his announced intentions.

The new statement, a friend of Becker's declared, will positively not be a confession of guilt, but will protest that he is innocent and will "place the entire responsibility for his death" on Governor Whitman.

NEW TRIAL EXPECTED.

Odds of three to two are being freely offered on the East Side early today that Becker will not be executed Friday morning. Those willing to wager on Becker's chances find few takers.

The mysterious news-gathering agencies of the district from which came the gunmen who died for killing Rosenthal have spread the "tip" that Becker is to get a further respite.

A rumor reached Albany late last night that Justice Ford would order a new trial, or at least decide to hear witnesses. Dispatches telling of this rumor said Governor Whitman had been given the information by a man officially connected with the case. District Attorney Perkins asserted today that he knew nothing of the report.

RICH MAN DEATH CAR OWNER

A wealthy man residing in Berkshire County was the owner of the death automobile that killed three-year-old Hollis Travers in Weston last week, according to a clew that is well developed by the State Police. It is expected that arrests will be made soon.

District Attorney Corcoran of Middlesex County has not only had a number of officers assigned to the case, but has offered a reward for any information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the two men that were in the automobile. The Selectmen of Weston have also offered a reward of $500.

This wealthy suspect is said to have been the passenger in the machine when it struck the boy, killing him instantly. The machine was then traveling at a speed in violation of the law, according to the authorities.

Instead of stopping the car to see what injuries the child had received the driver put on more speed and disappeared.

SAY PRESIDENT OF HAYTI SHOT

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Cables from Cape Haitien, Hayti, today, say Port-au-Prince reports that President Vilbrun Guillaume has been assassinated by revolutionists.

According to Cape Haitien reports, a mob stormed the French consulate, where the President had taken refuge after yesterday's uprising, dragged him from the keeping of the French minister, shot him to death, mutilated his body, carrying it through the streets.

The Navy Department today ordered Admiral Caperton at Cape Haitien to proceed to Port-au-Prince with the cruiser Washington, with full powers to land United States marines in case of emergency and to offer foreign representatives protection aboard the cruiser.

Today's news from Port-au-Prince was that panic prevailed there as a result of the revolutionary outbreak.

AUSTRIA DECLARED WAR ON SERBIA.

This action precipitated the general European conflict, of which the end is not yet in sight.

Two Swedish and 3 Danish Vessels Sunk

LONDON, July 28.—A dispatch from Copenhagen says that a German submarine stopped and burned the Swedish steamer Madonna, bound from Halmstaadt to Hartlepool, England, in the North Sea. The crew was saved.

Four more neutral ships, one Swedish and three Danish, have been sunk in the North Sea by German submarines. The victims were the Swedish steamship Emma and the Danish sailing ships Napstones, Elna and Mari. They were attacked and sunk off Longstone on Monday. The crews were landed today.

The English trawlers Salacia and Iceni have been sunk by a German submarine. Their crews were landed at Lowestoft today.

The British fishing smack Westward Ho was sunk today by a German submarine. The crew has reached Howestoft.

Bethlehem Up to 269 for a New High Mark

Bethlehem Steel continued its remarkable rise today, selling up to 269 within half an hour after the New York stock market opened. It touched 250, its highest price up to that time, yesterday afternoon, and closed Tuesday at 247.

"As soon as trading was resumed today it shot up and continued to rapidly ascend until it was 19 points above its previous high record. On Wall and State streets speculators, bankers and brokers and everybody else wondered where the rise of the common stock of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation would culminate.

The issue of only 150,000 shares is authorized and one reason for its advance is its scarcity. It has not been "watered." The public is said to have held but little of it when it was selling under 50 not many weeks ago.

The Bethlehem common stock has never paid a dividend and when one will be declared upon it is unknown. Yet today it was sold for almost twice as much as was paid for Bethlehem preferred stock, which draws dividends.

The Bethlehem Steel Corporation is now earning a big percentage on its capitalization of $10,000,000, owing to war contracts.

Buyers of the common stock expect the directors will sooner or later cut a huge "melon." That is why that issue sold today at 269 when the par value is only $100. Since it began to soar its market valuation has increased more than $200 a share.

Crucible Steel, another "war order" stock, sold today at 60¾, an advance of $11.50 a share since yesterday. United States Steel common sold at 66⅝, its highest price since the war began.

NEW SLAV DECLINES LOSS IN HEALTH POLAND POST

PETROGRAD, July 28.—Solicitor Czar Nicholas signed an imperial ukase today calling nineteen-year-old boys to the colors.

By FREDERICK WERNER,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

BERLIN, July 28.—German troops engaged in the great Warsaw wdrive in Poland have occupied Govorovo, fifty miles northeast of Warsaw.

The Russian village of Pisrunoy, fifteen miles west of the Warsaw fortifications, has been stormed by the German troops under Field Marshal von Hindenburg.

Counter attacks of the Russians on both banks of the Narew River, to the north of Serock and to the south of Nasielsk, failed.

Near Rosan the Germans captured 2,500 Russians and seven machine guns.

Between Mitau and the Niemen the captured 1,000 Russians.

To the east and southeast of Rozen the German attacks are proceeding successfully.

Fighting is ing rogress southwest of Gorskalvarja.

On the western theatre of war the Germans recaptured most of trenches they had lost to the French at Lingekopf and the Vosges.

RUSSIANS CLAIM TO HAVE ROLLED THE TEUTONS BACK

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROGRAD, July 28.—Russian troops are on the offensive along the entire front in Poland. Before their violent counter attacks the Germans trying to capture nraw have been compelled to retire at various points from five to twelve miles.

Heavy losses have been inflicted upon the Kaiser's forces. The casualties suffered by the Germans during the fighting of the last four days were officially estimated here today at 25,000.

Russia's finest troops are now on the battlefront and their presence is making itself felt in checking the Germans. Hope that Warsaw will be saved is increasing rapidly.

The conflict on the Narew front is the fiercest battle of the war. Without cessation, either night or day, the combat is raging. Both Russians and Germans have their heaviest artillery in action.

Champion Fat Man Also a Suffragist

The Progressives and Suffragists got a big addition to their ranks today when Dr. Herbert Caesar Penney of Lynn, weight 425 pounds, the State's champion fat man, announced his candidacy for the House on a Progressive-Votes for Women platform.

Dr. Richard H. Creel, the federal health officer who was appointed by Mayor Curley Health Commissioner of Boston at a salary of $7,500 a year and who was passed upon favorably by the Civil Service Commission, came to Boston and declined the position.

He has been in Boston two days making an examination of health conditions here. It became known today. He left for Washington late this afternoon. He called upon Mayor Curley this forenoon and personally told the latter that his health would not permit him to accept the position.

Dr. Creel told Mayor Curley that health conditions in Boston excel many of the big cities of the country and that he had found the lowest infant mortality of the country here.

He also said that Boston had the lowest death rate for a city of its size.

"Had any grave emergency existed in this city I would feel it a matter of public duty to accept the position offered me by Mayor Curley," said Dr. Creel.

Poor Streets Blamed in Fire Engine Crash

The big motor Engine 25, driven by Chauffeur Michael Griffin, ran wild today in High street while responding to an alarm for a fire at the corner of Chauncy street and Rowe place, and crashed into the bootblack stand of Peter Bachekas, No. 7 High street.

Although the front of the shop was demolished, the only one injured was Nicholas Saggara, a shoe polisher, and he escaped with only a few minor cuts from a shower of glass.

Slippery pavements, coupled with the miserable condition of the street at that point, are said by the police and firemen to have caused the accident.

L. V. Wentz, a customer with one shoe shined, had to leap for his life from the chair nearest the door. He landed in a heap on the floor, but wasn't hurt a bit.

Chauffeur Griffin was bruised a little and was applauded by the crowd for his nerve in sticking to his post and vainly endeavoring to swing the balky engine to safety.

Petrograd Kaiser's Aim; War End Jan. 1

AMSTERDAM, July 28.—A German colonel who claims to know the Kaiser's plans, declares that Warsaw will be taken before Aug. 1. He is sure of the capture of Petrograd, he says. The Kaiser told the general staff, this officer says, he has decided to end the war Jan. 1.

MRS. KELIHER ON VISIT TO PRISON

Mrs. Keliher today told "Big Bill" that she would exert every legal resource to prevent his being transferred from Charlestown to Atlanta.

WIFE AIDS "BIG BILL" TO BALK ORDER

Mrs. William J. Keliher, wife of "Big Bill" Keliher, who helped George W. Colgman wreck the National City Bank of Cambridge, today took legal steps to prevent the transfer of her husband from the Charlestown State Prison to the Federal Prison at Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. Keliher, through her counsel, Attorney Harvey H. Pratt of Hingham, is to appeal to the United States Department of Justice. Her petition will be based on the plea that she and her son will be prevented from seeing the prisoner if he is sent South; that this will work a hardship on both and that it would be unfair to her husband, who has been a model prisoner during the forty-two months he has been at Charlestown.

Mrs. Keliher contends that the change of prison conditions and climate will also be detrimental, and furthermore that Keliher should be given some reward for the "good influence he has had on the other prisoners."

HOPES FOR PARDON.

Mrs. Keliher and her son have been the only visitors the prisoner has had at Charlestown. Mrs. Keliher's devotion is the talk of the prison. Her sole hope is to bring about the pardon of Keliher, and, failing in that, to have his sentence of from fifteen to eighteen years shortened as much as possible by his good behavior.

Keliher's thrift as a cutter in the underwear department and his excellent deportment are said to have been inspired by the counsel of his wife.

Mrs. Keliher spent an hour with the prisoner today and was the first to give him positive notice of the contemplated transfer. It had been hinted to him last week, but he hoped for a way to avoid it.

His wife today told him it would be avoided if it lay in her power, and the appeal to the Department of Justice is the result.

COUNSEL TO FIGHT.

Keliher abhors the thought of the change. He looks forward to the monthly visits of his wife and son. To be sent miles away from them would add to the burdens of his imprisonment. He has gained weight, but has the prison pallor and his hair is very gray now. It has aged considerable.

Attorney Pratt, who defended Keliher at his trial, said today:

"The chances for preventing the transfer are promising. It would not vex the Federal authorities much to keep Keliher at Charlestown and we think he has earned the right by his splendid conduct. If we fail in our petition to the Department of Justice we may take it to court on the specific wording of the sentence by Judge Hale."

British Airship Explodes; 3 Killed

By International News Service.

LONDON, July 28.—Three persons were killed and fourteen injured by the explosion of a British military airship at Wormwood Scrubs today. The explosion occurred while the airship was in its shed. Both machine and shed were completely wrecked. A leak in the envelope of the airship was blamed.

ITALIAN TROOPS DRIVE FOE FROM GORIZIA; RUSH ATTACKS

ROME, July 28.—The evacuation of Gorizia, Austria, by the Austro-Hungarian troops is already under way, according to dispatches received here today. The Austrians suffered enormous losses on the Isonzo front, especially around Gorizia.

The evacuation of Podgora is now said to be a question of hours. Further progress has been made by the Italians on the Doberdo front and the Italians expect to hold very soon the route leading to Trieste by way of Doberdo. The Austrians have lost all their important positions around Doberdo.

The whole of the Carso plateau is now in the hands of the Italians, with the exception of a few hundred yards of trenches where the Austrians are still holding out.

On the Tagliano-Tarnzo-Redipuglia front the Italians are driving against the Austro-Hungarian lines in terrific attacks.

Near Stilfser-Joch (Stelvio Pass) fighting which has been in progress for fifteen days is developing into an engagement of great proportions. A violent artillery duel is in progress there. Italian infantry that was trying to capture the summit of Scarluzzo was stopped by heavy snow.

Details of the capture of Monte Sei Busi have been received from Bologna. The Italians attacked at night under the glare of magnesium shells.

La Piu' Orrida Del Mondo

BERLIN, 27 luglio.—Secondo il corrispondente dal Tirolo di un giornale locale, la battaglia sull'Isonso, fra gli Italiani e gli Austriaci, e' stata la piu' orrida, e piu' raccapricciante che mai si sia combattuta.

In corrispondente dice: "La grande lotta si e' combattuta per una settimana, senza che una decisione si sia delineata. Sul pianoro Doberdo il fuoco di artiglieria supero' in intensita' quello di Tarnow e Gorlicem, in Galizia.

ATTACCO DAL CELO E DAL MARE.

Roma, 27 luglio. — Gli Austriaci iniziano un gen-

GINEVRA, 27 Luglio.—La scorsa notte le truppe Austriache cominciarono ad evacuare Gorizia. Secondo un dispaccio da Laibach anche Podgora sara' evacuata fra poche ore.

Tutti i treni da Gorizia sono stati adibiti al trasporto delle truppe. Le munizioni e i viveri saranno rimossi dopo. E' stato ordinato di sospendere i lavori di riparo e di costruzione di altre fortificazioni.

Parecchie corazzate e torpediniere, oggi all' alba bombardarono parecchi punti della linea ferrata, sull' Adriatico, tra Siniggallia e Pesaro. Parecchie granate caddero su Fano e Sinigaglia. Alla stessa ora due idropiani Austriaci gettarono bombe su Ancona. Nessuna vittima e pochi danni furono causati. Appena dato l'allarme tutta l'illuminazione fu estinta e i forti aprirono il fuoco contro le aeronavi, le quali, dopo aver gettato poche bombe, scapparono via.

2000 PRIGIONI SUL CARSO.

Sul pianoro Carso, ad eccezione di poche trincee, gli Italiani hanno conquistate tutte le posizioni nemiche. Gli austriaci han perduto 2000 uomini in due giorni.

La grande offensiva Italiana sull'Isonzo progredisce giornalmente.

LE PATRIOTTICHE DICHIARAZIONI DEL CARDINALE GASPARRI.

ROMA, 27 luglio.—Ha fatto qui grande impressione il fatto che il cardinale Gasparri, testimoni a una causa per spionaggio, ha fatte delle importanti dichiarazioni in favore dell' Italia, riconoscendone, a nome del Papa, la giurisdizione. I cinque frati, imputati di spionaggio, furono assolti.

I Bersaglieri in 5 Assalti

Gli Italiani sono ora padroni della parte occidentale pianoro Carso si che gli Austriaci non potranno piu' disturbarli nel passaggio dell'Isonzo. La conquista del monte Sei Busi e' stata importantissima.

Per quattro volte i Bersaglieri assalirono il monte, sempre respinti con gravi perdite. La battaglia fu continuata lungo la notte e le posizioni cumiche venivano illuminate da bombe di magnesio. All'alba del mattino seguente, i Bersaglieri fecero il loro quinto assalto, che riuscì pienamente. Gli Austriaci sfiniti e demoralizzati si diedero alla fuga, ma ebbero tagliata la ritirata da un reggimento di Alpini. 2000 nemici caddero prigionieri con le loro munizioni e i loro viveri.

Allied Airmen Bombard Turk Aviation Camp

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS July 28.—Progress is being made by the allies at the Dardanelles, it was officially announced today. A Turkish aviation camp has been burned. The text of the communique follows:

"At the Dardanelles there is nothing to report with the exception of some slight advances by our troops on our right wing and some activity by our aviators, who successfully bombarded the new aviation camp of the enemy to the north of Chanak. They struck the hangars with their bombs, and also one oil depot. A considerable blaze resulted."

GERMAN ATTACK IN THE ARRAS REPULSED

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, July 28.—Desperate fighting has been resumed in Arras region, north of Souchez. The communique issued by the War Office this afternoon tells of the repulse of violent German attacks there. The enemy gained twenty yards, but the effort to break through the French line was checked.

The text of the communique relating to operations on the French front follow:

"In Artois to the north of Souchez the Germans, after heavy bombardment, launched attacks against our positions at three different points last night. After a violent battle they were driven out of the trenches which they had succeeded in penetrating, with the exception of one point where they still hold twenty yards of mine works before our front.

"Soissons was bombarded during the night.

"In the Argonne, in the region of La Fontinette-Aux-Charmes, the enemy's attack was thrown back by our infantry fire.

"On the rest of the front the night was calm."

REDFIELD CLEARS COUNTERS ON EASTLAND

CHICAGO, July 28.—Secretary of Commerce Redfield today gave the federal steamboat inspectors who were on the Eastland, a clean bill of health following an examination conducted by him into the Saturday's disaster.

The Secretary asked the inspectors specifically as to the number of persons permitted on board on the fatal morning. They answered that 2,495 persons were checked in on their automatic counters and that it did positively that each baby in arms was counted as one person.

"I see no reason why any fault for the disaster should be placed on these men," said the Secretary. "I hold them blameless, from their own testimony."

Secretary Redfield explained that his decision did not mean that all federal inspectors who had to do with the Eastland were exonerated. Other inspectors are to be examined tomorrow.

"And if I find any guilty of negligence or failure to carry out his duty strictly to the letter, I'll take it upon myself to discharge them from the service even before the Department of Justice or the Grand Jury can take up their cases," he said. "There will be no immunity baths."

DAY OF MOURNING.

Secretary Redfield ordered that watch be kept day and night by federal officers over the Eastland. He will not permit anything which might be of service as evidence to be disturbed.

Today was a day of mourning. Set apart by Mayor Thompson in a proclamation as a day for public sorrow over the loss of probably 1,331 lives, it was observed by the closing of all city offices and scores of business houses.

In a driving rain hundreds of funeral processions made their way through the city's streets. Every hearse in Chicago was in use, and many bodies had to be carried to the burying ground in auto trucks, wagons, automobiles and carriages.

The body of William Hoin, was taken from the river today. The total identified dead was thereby increased to 825 and the missing list was decreased to 506.

Fifteen minutes after his arrival from San Francisco, Mayor Thompson was at his desk to begin a "checking up" on the Eastland disaster.

MAYOR DEMANDS FACTS.

"I want some first-hand information," said the Mayor. "I want to talk to some of the survivors. I was on the Eastland once. That was enough for me."

Wait street. The voice then said it was Dr. Panner himself talking.

"TINY" LONGLEY TELLS STORY OF WEDDING

Charles Edmund Longley, broker and clubman of New York, known as "Tiny," at his mother's home, No. 131 Atlantic avenue, swampscott, today told for the first time the story of his courtship and secret marriage to Miss Grace E. Mortimer of New York.

"Tiny," so called because of his six feet and four inches of height and his 300 pounds of weight, during the telling stood at the side of his bride, a tall and slender blonde. She smilingly acquiesced in the story as told by her husband.

"I first met Miss Mortimer," he said, "three years ago at Hot Springs, Va. I fell in love with her at first sight. When I got back to New York I renewed the acquaintance. I proposed a year ago and she accepted. We both disliked notoriety, so we decided to get married quietly last January. No, I can't tell you where. There were no attendants. There's one thing I wish you'd do, and that is deny the story I have just made $72,000 in speculation. It isn't true."

The news of the marriage of the couple last Winter created a big sensation when it leaked out. Longley is son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Longley of New York, Pawtucket and Swampscott. He is a Brown man and heir to a large fortune.

Miss Mortimer has been a well known figure on Broadway. She is called by her friends stunningly beautiful. She is thirty, but looks younger. "Tiny" is thirty-two.

They left New York last week and went to the Longley home at Pawtucket. From there they came to Boston yesterday. They were met at the Back Bay station by Mrs. Longley, Sr., and taken by automobile to Swampscott where they will spend the Summer.

Recital in Cambridge.

Arthur Main Phelps of Boston, assisted by Miss Sybil Bingham, Radcliffe soprano, will give a recital in Appleton Chapel, Cambridge, tonight, for the members of the Harvard Summer School.

ANNA KASMAN of West End, who rescued Maurice Goldman from drowning.

Friends of Anna Kasman, an eighteen-year-old West End girl, who saved Maurice Goldman from drowning at Gloucester, today congratulated her for her bravery and will start a movement to see that she is properly rewarded.

Both Anna and young Goldman are spending the Summer at the West End Civic Service Club camp at West Gloucester. The two went swimming in the river. Goldman got into a swift current. His cries attracted Miss Kasman's attention and she swam bravely to the rescue.

It was necessary to work over Goldman with a pulmotor for some time. Miss Kasman was exhausted, but soon revived.

Carpathia Flees Sea Diver.

NEW YORK, July 28.—The Cunard liner Carpathia, here today from Liverpool, was chased by a submarine off the Irish coast Sunday, July 18, according to several of her passengers.

DEATH THREATS RECEIVED BY MRS. DREXEL

ISLESBORO, Me., July 28.—The mystery surrounding the attempt to murder Mrs. George W. C. Drexel, by hurling her over the edge of a cliff on the shore of her Summer estate, was increased today by the disconnected details of the assault which came out, despite the strict instructions given the Drexel household to maintain absolute silence.

Reports now indicate that Mrs. Drexel knows the identity of her assailant, and intimate some mysterious reason for the orders to all the Drexel employes which have the effect of shielding the man from police pursuit.

Engineer Saunders, employed on the Drexel steam yacht, is authority for the statement that the mysterious assailant is a former servant, seeking revenge for his discharge. This former employe, according to Saunders, who refuses to tell the man's name, was discharged by Mrs. Drexel for cruelty to his wife.

Other servants say that the Drexels have been receiving threatening letters demanding the payment of a large sum of money under pain of murderous attack.

The stories told by the servants, and the immediate understanding of the warning signal sent out from one of the Drexel yachts, the steam whistle of which was tied down to warn all on the estate of an attack, are evidences to the natives of Isleboro that the mysterious attack was not unexpected.

It is claimed here today that Mrs. Drexel had a most narrow escape from death at the hands of an equally mysterious assailant last Summer.

Woman Aids Police in Jewelry Recovery

Watch bracelets, valued at $75, which the police allege were obtained by Clifford A. Leman by worthless checks from a Washington street jeweler, have been recovered by Special Officer Travers of the Court square station, after a three months' search. Leman is alleged to have obtained the jewelry on April 17. He was arrested in a small Vermont town, but escaped from the town hall where he had been imprisoned. He is still at large. A young woman at Salem, N. H., notified the Boston police that she had been presented watch bracelets by Leman and the property was thus recovered.

Charlton Trial in August.

COMO, Italy, July 28.—The trial of Porter Charlton, the young American accused of the murder of his wife on their honeymoon trip here, probably will begin late in August.

PLAN TO REPAVE BOYLSTON ST. AT PARK SQ.

Boylston street in the Park square neighborhood is soon to be repaved.

This is welcome news to Bostonians, for Boylston street in that section has long been an eyesore to citizens and visitors alike. Not only will the improvement of the street be hailed with delight, but it will mark another victory in the AMERICAN'S campaign for better streets.

The repaving is to be done under the supervision of the Transit Commissioners. Clarke & Gower have the contract for the work, which is to cost $31,246.50 and is to give a woodblock surface to Boylston street from Arlington through Park square to Carver street.

The surface to be wood-blocked totals 9,000 square yards, which will require 360,000 woodblocks. This portion of Boylston street, when the work is completed, will resemble the newly woodblocked Summer and Tremont streets. The Boylston street work is to be begun as soon as possible, perhaps within a week.

The work, though a step forward in the right direction, is but a small part of what Boston needs in this line. There are miles upon miles of streets that need immediate repair or reconstruction. Since starting its campaign for better streets, the AMERICAN has urged the necessity of at once attending to this highly important problem.

Mayor Curley announces that he will again put his $500,000 loan order for street improvements before the City Council. An Council several weeks ago defeated the loan plan, but the Mayor says he will keep insisting, in the hope that the Council may take action which will result in improving the streets.

The Mayor has approved an order for the repaving of Beach street from Harrison avenue to Atlantic avenue with granite blocks. The Mayor refuses to approve an order for the rebuilding of a macadam surface on Princeton street, East Boston, between Meridian and Shelby streets. The Mayor gives as his reason that hereafter he will insist on the building of permanent street surfaces.

"So far as possible I shall insist upon the building of permanent street surfaces in the future, to take the place of our present dirty macadam highways," Mayor Curley announced. "That's why I am withholding my approval of the Princeton street rebuilding order.

"My trip through the West has convinced me that to have clean thoroughfares it is necessary to do away with our old-style macadam street surfacing. The right kind of street may cost more when put in, but it will pay the city to make the change in the end."

SHIPPERS ASK FIRM NOTE TO ENGLAND

By THEO TILLER,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The shipping controversy between the United States and Great Britain took precedence in the minds of administration officials today. Much interest was shown in the probable contents of the new communication which Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister, has announced will be sent within a week.

The sinking of the American flax-laden ship Leelanaw by a German submarine was relegated to second place, as the government now considers it to be only a diplomatic matter which will require legal argument as in the case of the William P. Frye.

Pending receipt of the supplementary note by this government the communication being prepared by President Wilson and Secretary Lansing on the British controversy will not be sent.

Work will proceed on the American note, however, as the British blockade situation becomes more and more serious from the standpoint of the American shipper, and pressure is being brought upon the administration for early action.

It is understood that the only purpose of the London officials in asking postponement of the publication of its note sent last week was a desire of His Majesty's government to reply in detail to the communication of the United States cabled on July 17 with regard to cases before prize courts.

It was argued that there is a considerable difference of opinion between the two governments as to the principles of law applicable in prize court proceedings and the United States should stand on the rights of its citizens under international law as hitherto established.

PEOPLE SHE KNEW HAD BEEN HELPED

Was Given Encouragement by Statements of Well-Known Boston People.

Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, acts like magic in stomach trouble, indigestion, gas formation, dizziness, bloating and heavy distressed feeling after meals and on retiring. It attacks and destroys all poisons in the blood, corrects diseased conditions of the liver and kidneys and restores them to normal conditions. Daily testimonials from local people are received verifying these claims for Plant Juice. Only recently the following statement was received from Mrs. W. R. Holly, who lives at No. 417 Franklin Street, Melrose Highlands, and who has lived in Boston for the past 23 years. Mrs. Holly is well known and very popular among a large circle of friends. She says:

"For the past eight years I have suffered with stomach trouble, indigestion and dyspepsia. My food fermented in my stomach, causing excessive gas, which in turn pressed onto my heart, causing palpitation. All foods distressed me, and I had a bad taste in my mouth and was nervous and irritable. I was constipated, my liver was torpid and at times I would faint away. I saw where your medicine had benefited a number of sick people and I decided to try it. After the first bottle I noticed relief, and now after taking it about four weeks I can eat anything I wish, even a boiled dinner at night. I am free from all the above disorders that troubled me and I can highly recommend Plant Juice, to any one that suffers as I have.

There are numerous symptoms of this trouble that Plant Juice can relieve. In fact, any of the following may denote affections of the stomach: Indigestion, dyspepsia, belching of wind, bad breath, sick, throbbing headache, poor circulation, night sweats, that tired feeling, coated tongue or a poor complexion.

The Plant Juice Man is at the Liggett Drug Store, corner of Washington and Avon Streets, where he daily meets the local public and introduces and explains the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

CUT PRICE MARK-DOWN PIANO SALE

J. P. COLLINS
Boston's Piano King
Crowned King of Low Prices and Big Sales

In justice to the former Boylston St. piano dealer from whom I bought thousands of dollars' worth of new high-class upright pianos that are included in this sale, I must say that the original prices marked on the tags were not too high (considering the superior value of the pianos). Had he sold these pianos at the original prices he would be realizing only the regular gross profit that must be made to cover the usual expenses. The low prices that I have placed on these pianos do not do justice to the fine instruments.

The low prices represent only about 40% of the value. I do not consider it necessary to brag about the splendid reputations of these pianos. Read the tags. The names will be recognized by all Bostonians as the best.

Remember, through courtesy I do not name all the pianos on sale. The make you want may be in the unnamed lot of 47 pianos at a $200 saving to you.

$125,000 PAID TO CABOT WILL LAWYERS

Attorney Charles F. Choate's fee of $100,000 in the Cabot will contest was the most popular subject of discussion among Boston lawyers today.

And Sherman L. Whipple's fee of $25,000 for prosecuting the claims of Mrs. Lloyd Vernon Briggs, daughter of Louis Cabot, the millionaire testator, added to the discussion.

As a matter of fact the executors of the estate allowed Attorney Choate $136,000 for legal fees and expenses. The $36,000 was used to pay court bills of a trial that lasted forty-four days and to remunerate Mr. Choate's assistants.

2 BROTHERS OF BROOKLINE GIRL LOST IN WAR

Her name is Kathleen Moore. She is young and comely, comely even through the tears that stream down her rosy cheeks as she thinks of her four brothers who went to war for their country.

Brother Charlie fell first.

Then brother Jackie was killed.

Brother Tommy—he is the baby of the family—has been wounded.

Brother Maurice—God knows what of brother Maurice!

Kathleen told the AMERICAN today something of what the war has done to her. Letters she sobbed over told their story, too. She said:

"Poor little Jackie—Charlie; both gone. I can't believe it. Yet when I realize it, how proud I feel to think that they died in such a loyal manner. Now comes word that the baby of the family, 'Little Tommy,' has been wounded.

"I think our family has done its bit for their dear old country. The four boys were all members of the same regiment, but of different battalions. One consolation was that Jackie was with Charlie when he was killed and stayed with him until he was buried. The boys, every one of them, had sweethearts, too. That made it doubly hard.

"Poor mother and father, how they have suffered, yet they feel just as proud as I do. Never a week went by but what I got a lovely, motherly letter from one of the boys. The letters were right from the trenches and, oh, how I used to love to get them. I felt so proud to think of Tommy, Jackie, Charlie and Maurice, all fighting.

"Their letters were so cheerful, too. The last letter I received from Jackie was on May 1. Poor laddie, he was killed a week later.

"The boys have seen service most of their young lives. They took what is called the 'nine months abroad and three months home enlistment.'

"In the letters I received from the boys they told me not to attempt to come home, as it was unsafe to attempt to travel just at this time on the ocean. I've been here two years now and I promised my dear old mother that I would return in two years, so I am going to go to her and father on Christmas. I want to see them more than ever. Poor old dears, just think of what their sacrifice has been for this terrible slaughter.

"How hard it has been for mother to write and tell me of the deaths of the boys. One right after another. I pray every night for them to spare the baby, Tommie and Charlie Maurice. There were four of us girls and four brothers. I have a sister here in the States with me. She is in Holyoke."

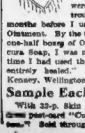
SCALES ON HEAD HAIR FELL OUT

Dandruff So Thick Scaled Off. Could Be Seen On Hair and Scalp. Itched and Burned.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My trouble began as scales on my head, and ended in a very thick dandruff. The dandruff was so thick that it scaled off so it could be seen very plainly on the hair and scalp. It itched and burned something awful. My hair fell out so it did not leave much on the head.



"I used a number of different remedies, but they were not successful. The trouble lasted about six months before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. By the time I had used one and one-half boxes of Ointment with the Cuticura Soap, I was nearly well, and by the time I had used the other half box, I was entirely healed." Says Harvard Keeps Business Off Charles

Harvard College is responsible for driving practically all the business interests of Cambridge off the Charles River, as City Solicitor James F. How to Be Slim and Attractive

If you are one of the many who suffer from obesity you know only too well the humiliation and discomfort one suffers when they are too fat. The cause of obesity is undoubtedly due to faulty assimilation. Too much of your food is turned into fat and too little into strength and vitality. To correct this eat sparingly of starchy foods and eat from any good druggist a few oil of korein capsules and take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week and note what a pleasant and reliable method this is for removing superfluous fat from any part of the body.

It costs little, is absolutely harmless and I am sure a week's trial should convince anyone that it is unnecessary to be burdened with even a single pound of unsightly fat.

PLAN ARREST IN MARION DEATH MYSTERY

A warrant was asked for in Wareham today for the arrest of a young man in Marion suspected of causing the death of Harold Leonard Murdock, a seventeen-year-old Boston youth.

Murdock died on July 19 at Marion. He had been ill four days. It was supposed he was suffering from the heat. Some time after his death stories reached his aunt that he had been in a fist fight in a Marion pool room.

Murdock formerly lived in Roxbury.

Brush of the Elevated a "common man," and was in turn offered $1,000 by Mr. Brush if he could prove that the Elevated and the Bay State have been in conference over joint use of tracks in the East Boston tunnel for through Bay State service to Revere Beach.

The controversy arose before the Public Service Commission on Giblin's protest against the through service on the ground that such service through the tunnel would hurt the general East Boston service.

"THE RABBIT'S COLUMN" By Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

Talk with any wise old baseball manager or player and he will tell you that the slower a player becomes the more that player knows about inside baseball and the more he plays the inside game.

While he has all his speed the player breezes through carelessly. His physical fitness carries him through with ease to spare. When he feels himself slipping he herds by himself, figures everything to three or four decimal places and actually begins to learn the game. They do say that Matheson, Coombs, Rucker, all Greater New York hurlers, are in this class. The slower they become physically, the faster their top piece revolves.

If all this is true, just stop to imagine what Matty, the Iron Man, and Nap might have done when at the top of their physical speed if they only had the wile and knowledge of inside tactics they've acquired on the physical down grade. And what team would ever get a look past Cleveland Alexander of the Phils if Alex, now at the top of his physical speed, could add to his stock in trade the mastery of the inside stuff that supposedly comes only the inevitable retreat before the inevitable enemy, Age?

There are a few records that the stars of today can take a shot at, with the fans' cordial approval, any time they see fit. They include old "Buck" Freeman's 25 home runs, made during the season of 1899, while a member of the Washington (National League) club; four home runs in one game, made by Bob Lowe of the Boston (National League) club against Cincinnati in 1894, and a similar feat by the late Ed Delehanty of the Philadelphia Nationals in 1896 against Chicago.

Of the more modern players Frank Schulte of the Cubs came within four circuit slams of Freeman's record in 1911, when he hammered out 21, while Cravath gathered in 19 home runs in 1912, and repeated in 1914, giving him a total of 38 in two years. Home Run Baker collected 39 in four seasons, 1911 to 1914, inclusive. None of the present stars has shown an indication of surpassing the one-day performance credited to Lowe and Delehanty.

Jack Hayden, who was recently released as manager of the Louisville American Association club, has been vindicated. At the time of his release Hayden had the Colonels in second place, but Owner Wathen insisted that he should be leading the league. Hayden said he was lucky to have the team up that far and wanted to buy more players. He was finally released, and Ezra Midkiff, formerly of the Yankees, was appointed manager. Under Midkiff the Colonels have skidded badly and will probably finish last unless they brace suddenly.

Connie Mack does not propose to give any further help to the contenders in the present pennant race. He has sold Eddie Collins and Ed Murphy to the White Sox and Jack Barry to the Red Sox.

"If I have any other players that I want to get rid of neither Boston, Chicago nor Detroit can bid for them," said Mack. "I have done enough to help these two teams and the race is now going to a finish with the teams as they are so far as I am concerned. If I have any player left whom I do not intend to carry I will rid myself of him to one of the other clubs which needs help, but not to one of the contenders."

Larry Pratt, released catcher of the Brookfeds, burst into print the other day with the statement he is about to bring suit against the Brookfeds under the Employers' Liability act. He alleges he was injured in the performance of duty, and that his unconditional release is in violation of the law. He claims to have been injured in the series with Pittsburgh, when Ed Konetchy bumped into him at the plate and badly hurt his throwing arm. Since that time he says he has not been able to throw with accuracy and sets forth that in his contract it states that he is to be paid while suffering from injuries received in service. The suit will settle the question of whether the ball players are to be included under the liability act.

"I have been asked, times without number," says Buck Herzog, "why I don't have the boys sacrifice oftener. My reason is simply this: We are so unreliable at bat, and the distribute of long, driving hitters, that we would profit but little by sacrificing to take a man one base first to second. With such a club it is better, I believe, to gain a solitary cushion for a single runner. The clubs can and should use the sacrifice bunt right along, because they have long hitters coming up who can be relied upon to send the man home from second—we haven't any Baier, nor any Zimmermann, nor any Magee, nor any Gowdy, so there we are!"

The Philadelphia crowds have one amusing habit. They have grown so accustomed to seeing Gavvy Cravath hit those home runs over the barrier that they take it for granted he has delivered the goods every time they see the ball leave his bat and soar towards the outfield. On each and every such occasion they all arise and shriek like happy wolves—and then, if the ball falls short and is snapped up by some outfielder, the noise dies out as if it had been extinguished with a club.

Eddie Collins of the Pirates once wanted to be a member of the Athletics, but at that time Mack had his World's Champions and could not use him.

Collins at that time played right field for the San Antonio team down in Texas. He was a good hitter then, but threw only fairly and did not move on the bags as though he had big league speed. The youth has come up in the last three years, and today Mack could just a little more than make room for him.

T. CONNOLLY DAY AT FENWAY PARK

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Having begun so well on home grounds there is no good reason why the Red Sox cannot keep it up. The White Sox are here yet, ready to mix things, but they will have to step some to beat Our Boys. Carrigan's team is now engaged in the pleasant task of evening up old scores. It will be remembered that the White Sox took about every game in sight in the first two series played by these teams. But Our Boys are minding it back to them, and at the same time getting their goat.

Shore or Foster will, most likely, be in the spotlight this afternoon. We think either of them can take the visitors' measure. Scott or Bens will no doubt do the pitching for Chicago.

It will be "Natick Day" up at the ball yard. Several hundred residents of Umpire Tommy Connolly's town will see the fracas, and Tommy himself will umpire the batle. The umpires yesterday were Evans and Chill, but President Lannin wired President Johnson of the American League asking that Connolly be sent to officiate in order that his townspeople could see him work. Mr. Johnson granted the request.

ST. LOUIS, July 26.—Pitcher Leverenz of the Browns has been released to the Indianapolis (American Association) club.

BRAVES INVADE WESTERN CAMPS

CINCINNATI, July 28.—Manager Stallings and his band of Boston Braves arrived here this morning to open a series with the Reds this afternoon.

The Braves are about the happiest ball club that has struck this town for a long time, and if confidence is any criterion, the Braves should win. They are not over-confident, however. Not in the least. Manager Stallings has curbed them. They are just confident enough to play for all they are worth.

The Braves stopped off yesterday at Brooklyn on their way to the West and checked the Dodgers. That game pleased Manager Stallings greater than anything that has happened this year. You know the Braves are all decked out on this trip in new traveling uniforms and they were used yesterday in Brooklyn. Manager Stallings was a bit worried as his mind was thinking whether those new suits would be lucky or not. Manager Stallings says today that they are fine uniforms.

The Miracle Man was undecided as to the slab selections for his clinchers today but on the road he usually starts every series with Rudolph and "Little Dick" is slated to work today. Hughes and Davis are also ready to take their turn.

Manager Herzog is up against it in the line of pitchers. Dale worked Monday, Toney yesterday. Ames is missing from the club, Benton and Leaf have been suspended and this leaves McKenery and Schneider. Schneider has been working two or three innings nearly every day, but he is a willing worker and if McKenery does not warm up well today he will get the job.

AZEVEDO BESTED IN TIDY BOUT WITH SAYLOR

ATLAS A. A. RESULTS.

"Young" Saylor defeated Joe Azevedo, twelve rounds.

George Alger defeated Charley Beyers, eight rounds.

Billy Galvin knocked out "Battling" McFarland, four rounds.

"Young" Clancy defeated Cy Goodwin, six rounds.

By JACK CONWAY.

MILBURN "YOUNG" SAYLOR is today hurling new challenges at Freddy Welsh, the honorable lightweight champion, and Charley White, who will admit on cross-examination he is the greatest 133-pound boxer in captivity. The Indianapolis boxer claims he is entitled to a whirl with either Welsh or White, as he continued his winning drive at the Atlas A. A. last night when he defeated Joe Azevedo of California, in a twelve-round skirmish.

It was a hard, rough battle, with Saylor having the better of the going in the majority of the rounds. The decision of Referee Phil Powers was a good one and met with the approval of the "fans." If Powers had been the third man in the ring when Saylor fought White, he would probably not have hesitated in awarding the verdict to the Indianapolis boxer. He won that bout, too, but Referee Rocha did not have the courage of his convictions and called the contest a draw.

Last night's tussle was not as thrilling as the Saylor-White mixup, but there was, nevertheless, enough action crowded into the twelve frames to keep the "fans" interested. Saylor did not show as well as he did in his contest with White. This was probably due to Azevedo's style of fighting. He "tied" his opponent up in the clinches and made it difficult for him to land many effective blows when at close quarters.

SAYLOR had the better of the going in eight rounds, two were in favor of Azevedo, while the other two sessions were even. Saylor had an advantage in the second, third, fourth, fifth, seventh, tenth, eleventh and twelfth rounds. The eighth and ninth were Azevedo's, while the first and sixth frames ended with honors even.

Saylor was guilty of considerable illegal fighting. He used his elbows on several occasions, while he butted Azevedo with his head. But in the majority of the rounds, Saylor fought a clean battle and kept forcing the issue. The result was he had a comfortable margin in his favor when the dean did ethmes ended at the end of the twelfth session. Each boxer had a gash over his right eye.

IT cannot be said that Azevedo was outclassed. He was beaten in eight of the twelve rounds, but he nevertheless gave a good account of himself. He is a strong, rugged youngster, and, as he is only twenty-one years of age, has a bright ring future. But he will not do to go short distance bouts until he masters more about "inside" boxing. He is too slow to beat any of the star lightweights in contests over the short route. He would do better in ten, twelve and twenty-five round fights, where his strength and ability as an infighter could be used to better advantage.

THE first round was even, Saylor then started to force the fighting and had things his own way up to the eighth session. The ninth and ninth chapters furnished some merry scrapping with the Californian having the best of the going. Saylor then let out and took the honors in the remaining rounds. He showed particularly well in the tenth chapter when he rocked Azevedo with a fusillade of left and right hand punches. Saylor missed many times during the contest, but managed to land enough solid blows to assure himself of a win.

GEORGE ALGER outgeneraled and outfought Charley Beyers in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. Alger gave a splendid exhibition and outpointed his hard-hitting rival in every round.

Billy Galvin of South Boston, won from "Battling" McFarland of Providence, in four rounds, the referee stopping the one-sided contest. "Young" Clancy, the North End boxer, outpointed Cy Goodwin in six rounds.

Bryn Mawr Cup Winners.

NARRAGANSETT, July 28.—The Bryn Mawr polo team of Philadelphia won the Army and Navy cup, presented by Mrs. John B. Fell, for teams handicapped at not less than 17 goals, by beating Cooperstown, 6½ to 2½.

Brighton Boy Real Hustler in World's Series Contest

JOHN F. SHEA.

While waiting—hustle! is the advice the Baseball Contest Editor gives to all candidates.

A new vote standing will be published in next Sunday's AMERICAN, but, in the meantime, each candidate can gather thousands of votes, which will improve his position in the list. At the close of each day every contestant's vote total should show a substantial addition.

Sit down tonight and figure out the cost of attending the World's Series. Quite a sum of money, isn't it? But the AMERICAN'S twenty-five free trips will not cost the winners a single penny—all expenses will be paid and everything possible done for the comfort and convenience of the winners.

The Contest Editor would like to print the pictures of the candidates, as far as space will allow. But he can't print them unless they are sent in. Those who wish to take advantage of this offer had better do so without delay.

Pile up the votes, fans—you will need every one you can get.

One of the active candidates who intends to "hustle" every minute of every day from now until the close of the contest is John F. Shea, of Brighton. His many friends are working for him and their watchword is "HUSTLE."

Mike Glover to Meet Bartfield in Atlas Arena

Mike Glover, the South Boston welterweight, will be one of the principals in the fistic festivities of twelve rounds at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. He will be opposed by "Soldier" Bartfield of New York, who recently created quite a stir in the boxing world by defeating Mike Gibbons in a ten-round contest. The men have agreed to make 146 pounds for the match.

Jack Britton was originally booked to clash with Glover. It was necessary to call off the Glover-Britton mix, when the latter's bout with Johnny Dundee was put over until Sept. 5.

Walter Butler of Beachmont will meet Ray Wiley of Fall River in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. Johnny Boyle of Lowell and Billy Corrigan of Cambridge will clash in a six-round bout, with Johnny Emery of Cambridge and Kidding Carroll of Lawrence furnishing the fireworks in another six-round battle.

Harold Weeks Lands Eagles' 2-Mile Run

PROVIDENCE, July 28.—Boston runners were much in evidence at the field day held by the Eagles. Several B. A. A. entrants captured prizes, while the Irish-American Club furnished two winners.

100-yards dash—Won by Thomas W. Soarer, Providence; Ted Muth, ——.

110-yards dash—Won by A. L. Foley, B. A. A.; 120-yards dash—Won by J. L. Foley, B. A. A.

BIKE TITLE RACE IN 50-MILE TEST

TONIGHT'S RACE CARD.

AMERICAN MIDDLE DISTANCE CHAMPIONSHIP (fifty-mile) Motor-Paced Race—Clarence Carman, Jamaica, L. I., vs. George Wiley, Syracuse, N. Y., vs. Elmer Collins, Lynn, vs. Bobbie Walthour, Atlanta, Ga.

Amateur and professional events.

Fifty miles of motor-paced racing at the Revere Cycle Track tonight will decide who is to wear the crown of American middle distance bike champion for a year to come.

This event, the big annual classic at the beach oval, will have a select field of starters, including Clarence Carman, the present champion George Wiley, Elmer Collins and Bobbie Walthour.

In past years the championship race has been decided on Saturday, but this season Manager Butler of the Revere track has planned so many big events that he found it necessary to shift it to a Wednesday, making the biggest mid-week attraction ever put on at the seaside saucer. It has been customary to charge double rates at this event, but this evening the regular prices will stand. Carman, who rode so sensationally last Wednesday evening, is the logical favorite in this evening's event. He is picked to successfully defend his title, although there are many who believe that Wiley has better than an even chance of regaining the big honors.

Collins and Walthour, both dangerous men in championship contests, are conceded an outside chance. If Collins shows the form that he has been displaying all week in practice brushes he will bear very close watching, for no rider has shown better condition on the eve of a big race than the Lynn boy.

The winner of tonight's race will be presented with a diamond-studded gold medal and will circle the track with a bouquet of American beauties. Mayor Curtis of Revere will make the presentation speech.

Resolute Again Is Master of Vanitie

NEWPORT, July 28.—The Resolute continues to show its superiority over the Vanitie, winning the first clash of a three-race series by a good margin. The Resolute sped twice over the 14-mile course from Brenton's Reef Lightship to Point Judith buoy and return with an eight-mile breeze from the southwest, in 4 hours, 18 minutes and 28 seconds, leading Vanitie by 2 minutes, 57 seconds on actual time.

Resolute's allowance of 1 minute 6seven seconds gave her a margin of 5 minutes 4 seconds on corrected time. Cornelius Vanderbilt was at the wheel of the Vanitie.

SOUND BODIES

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE

This is the twenty-fifth of a series of articles on "Sound Bodies" written exclusively for the Boston AMERICAN by Julian Hawthorne. These articles will be continued in the AMERICAN on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

HOW TO MAKE YOURSELF STRAIGHT.

This exercise is one of the old stand-by's, which is to be found in every system of calisthenics that has been invented since Adam. It is none the worse on that account—on the contrary, and as might be expected, it is so much the better. It would not have lasted out so well if it hadn't deserved to.

That backbone of yours is so important a part of your structure, that anatomists have classified you as a vertebrate animal on account of it. Your skeleton, if you look at it with the X-ray attachment to your eyesight, shows you a spine and little else of much importance—your skull, even, is but an overdeveloped vertebra. But your backbone would not be of much use to you, were it not for the spinal marrow or cord which traverses it and branches out all over and through your body; and the exercises that do you most good are those which in a greater or less degree affect this cord.

On the other hand, the bodily habits which do you most harm are those which prevent the spinal cord from getting a fair show—which twist it askew, or starve it, or crush it—and since you have been a prey to a number of these habits heretofore, it behooves you to lose no time in counteracting their ill effects as much as possible.

Stretching the cord—as I have already told you—is the way to strengthen it; and you have had several upward stretching exercises already; now we will try one which affects chiefly the lower part of it, where it spreads out into a thick network of nerves called a plexus—a sort of circular disk. It is in the small of your back, which ought to be as strong as a derrick, but which is apt to be far from being that. Strength there enables you to lift heavy weights—which, although not desirable as a regular exercise, has to be done sometimes, and if you attempt to do it without the strength, may produce serious consequences—rupture, for instance.

Now for the exercise, which, for all this introduction, is as simple as picking up a pin. In fact, that is what it amounts to.

Stand in the first position—German-soldier—and fill out your chest with a good breath. Raise your arms straight over your head as high as you can get them. Now bend forward at the hips, bringing your arms down at the same time, thumbs together, elbows straight, and giving force to your bend by the swing of the arms. Keep your knees rigidly straight all the time—the moment you allow any bend to come into them the exercise ceases to be any use.

Keep on bending as far as you can, the effort being to make your fingers touch the floor in front of your feet; but if you get much further than the level of your knees at the first attempt, you need not feel discouraged. By and by you can lay the palms of your hands flat on the floor without a knee-quiver.

Up again, to the full stretch; and repeat twenty times. Let your breath go out as you come down, and take it in again as you come up.

If you stick to this exercise all your life, you will be as straight at sixty as you were at sixteen; and that is unusual, and worth while.

Grand Circuit Winners.

DETROIT, July 28.—Grand Circuit winners. State Fair Grounds—2:05 pace, $1,000, Lelia Patchen, Snow, three heats and fifth; 2:12 trot, $1,000, Lou Jennings, Brennan, straight heats; 2:07 pace, $5,000, Single, Gosnell, straight heats; 2:22 pace, $1,000, unfinished; Jean won first heat.

Water Wagon Riders Last the Longest

John L. Sullivan was only thirty-four years old when Corbett laid him away, but he had taken very poor care of himself. Since then "Jawn" has come to a realization of what fast living does to an athlete and now he is an ardent advocate of temperance.

There are some interesting side lights on the lives of other fighters in tomorrow's part of Willard's autobiography in the AMERICAN.

And the most successful of them all had season tickets for seats on the water wagon.

BOXING RESULTS

BIDDEFORD, Me., July 28.—Bill McKinnon of Boston and Lou Anderson of Berlin, N. H., boxed six rounds to a draw in the opening bout of the Twin City A. A. indoor season.

ST. LOUIS, July 28.—Tommy Burns of St. Louis outpointed Frank Mantell of Providence; eight rounds. The bout was marred by too much clinching. Mantell landed the most telling punches.

TENNIS EXPERTS GIVE RARE SHOW

Some great tennis is promised at Longwood today in the Longwood Bowl singles tennis tournament and the Eastern doubles matches for the team championship title. The sport starts at 10 o'clock.

G. A. Lyon, jr., of Boston and Craig Biddle of Philadelphia clash in the morning. R. D. Sheaver, the many time Massachusetts title-holder, goes against G. W. Caner, the long-limbed Harvard player, entered from Philadelphia, his home city.

C. J. Griffin, the California star, and H. T. Emerson of Cincinnati, will have a difficulty. Middle-of-the-road West contest. W. M. Washburn, the Metropolitan champion, winds up the morning schedule with a match at 11:30 with the winner of the delayed Taylor-Hoover match.

In the afternoon general interest will center in the match between R. N. Williams, the National singles title holder, favored to go through and meet McLoughlin, and G. F. Gardner, jr., one of the home club stars. On the championship court the match between J. W. Niles, the best singles player in Massachusetts, and W. M. Washburn and another smart looking pair, and Niles and Gardner, Wright and W. F. Johnson, and H. C. Johnson and Craig Biddle may also be mentioned in the same breath.

The gallery tennis play was a brilliant one, and it was afforded plenty of fast tennis and a lot of thrills.

Feds' New Move Is Assailed by Ban B.

CHICAGO, July 28.—President B. B. Johnson of the American League has a lot to say about the proposed new Federal League move to renew its raids on "Organized baseball."

"Why, it is almost unbelievable," states Johnson. "The Federal League is doing exactly what it asked Judge Landis to prevent. They went into court praying that 'organized baseball' be enjoined from interfering with the players and business of the Federal League. Now, without waiting for the decision of Judge Landis, they announce that they are going out to get players from our leagues, regardless of contracts.

"No greater anarchy in baseball could be imagined than that. I understand they have already obtained a player from the International League and one from the American Association. That's certainly fine business."

Kahoe Scouting for Braves.

Mike Kahoe, the former big league catcher and scout of the Washington Americans of late seasons, has been signed to serve in a like capacity by President Gaffney of the Braves. Kahoe has always ranked with baldom's brainiest members.

SIDELIGHTS on SPORTS By A·H·C·Mitchell

HARRY HOOPER is batting considerably below the average of his previous years, but the Red Sox can afford to stand a little of this falling off stuff as long as Harry shines in the outfield the way he did yesterday.

This modest, unassuming lad is worth his weight in gold as an outfielder. It is doubtful if any right-fielder in the country could have duplicated Hooper's performances of yesterday. The catch he made off Weaver in the opening round was one of the best ever seen at Fenway Park and Hooper himself has made many brilliant catches on those same grounds—not forgetting the wonderful piece of work in the 1912 World's Series.

Hooper's throw to Gardner of Schalk's single when he nipped Felsch at third was a marvel of speed and accuracy. The ball did not appear to rise more than three feet from the ground. It went on a line to within six feet of Gardner and bounced up in his hand at the right height, so that Larry was able to complete the play, getting Felsch by an eyelash. But it took Hooper's perfect throw to do it.

ALTHOUGH Del Gainer did not make a hit yesterday against Russell, the left-hander, Manager Carrigan is wise in playing the West Virginian on first whenever there is a southpaw working against the Red Sox. Gainer hits the ball as hard as any right-handed hitter in the American League, and he is liable at any time to poke one for a cleanup swat whenever a left-hander is pitching. Gainer worked in a sacrifice fly, however, which scored one of the three runs accumulated by Our Boys. Joe Wood scored another run with a sacrifice fly, and Barry's single tallied the third one.

THERE is no doubt at all but that Harry adds great strength to the Red Sox defence. He plays second so much he was brought up on the bag. His pickup of Weaver's run and getting a man at the plate was a fine piece of work, although Cady's handling of the ball was brilliant, too.

THE results of yesterday's ball games were mostly all to the merry from a Boston standpoint. The Red Sox heightened their lead by defeating the Chicagos. The Tigers won, too, but they were expected to fatten up in the series against New York. If Carrigan's men can take a majority of the battles from the White Sox and then repeat when the Tigers get here the last of the week, all will be well.

In the National League the Braves gained a full game on the leaders, as both the Phillies and the Brooklyns were defeated. By winning from the Dodgers, the Champs went into a tie with the Cubs and Pirates for third place. They are now four full games behind Brooklyn and six full games behind the Phillies.

The National League race is certainly a bird.

LITTLE Red McGlennon, the Red Sox mascot, performed a new stunt at Fenway Park yesterday. When the regulars had nearly finished their preliminary work Little Red went out to second base and began stopping grounders, taking throws from the plate, assisting in practice doubleplays and so on. He gave a fine exhibition and was loudly splauded by the fans.

THE crowd gave Buck Weaver of the White Sox a "riding" all afternoon. The fans had it in for him on account of the way he acted when Scott was injured several weeks ago when sliding into second base. Weaver handled the throw and when Scott fell to the ground after the play, apparently badly injured, Weaver walked off the field unconcernedly, without stopping to assist the Boston player. The crowd remembered the action and yelled "Boob" at Weaver whenever he went to bat.

THE Braves got a hearty cheer when the figures of their victory over the Brooklyns went up on the Fenway Park score board.

FELSCH played a splendid game in centre field or the White Sox. He covered lots of ground and caught several hard liners and flies.

JOE WOOD pitched ninety-five balls against the White Sox in the opening game. They were distributed in the nine innings as follows: 14, 13, 9, 19, 7, 9, 12.

EDDIE MURPHY looks queer in a Chicago uniform. He was one of the four hits made off Wood and it scored Chicago's only run.

"THE GODDESS"

By GOUVERNEUR MORRIS and CHARLES W. GODDARD

By Gouverneur Morris and Charles W. Goddard

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

DISCOVERING now that his victim had been Professor Stilliter, who had only come, probably, to fetch a magazine or something of that sort, Freddie was in mortal terror. It would have comforted him greatly could he have known that Professor Stilliter was equally frightened.

One thing was sure, Freddie mustn't be discovered in the morning. So he made his way forward to his own quarters, his teeth knocking together with fear of Professor Stilliter, but encountering nothing more dangerous than a number of negro porters sound asleep.

The next morning Professor Stilliter recovered the leather case which he imagined to contain what was now his one remaining pair of extra glasses, and without opening it slipped it into his waistcoat pocket.

The glasses themselves were, of course, in the Ferret's possession; throughout the day he kept his ears open in the hope that a reward would be offered for their return. None was, and presently, in his usual happy-go-lucky way, he had forgotten all about them.

Through the night, now standing by the hour on sidings, now at water tanks, now crawling forward, the snow-white train had covered the few miles which separated its last stop from the chief city of the north woods, which was to see the finish of Celestia's "upstate" campaign.

An energetic tramp walking the ties could have covered the distance in about a quarter of the time.

Less than midway between the last stop of the snow-white train and the chief city of the north woods was Tommy's old stamping ground and the cave in which Celestia had been brought up.

Tommy, traveling through the night at first on a bicycle, along the ties, and then on foot, knowing now that there was a cave to be found, and about where to look for it, had discovered the entrance thereto, just at dawn, and had penetrated deep enough to discover certain traces of human habitation and deceit.

Of these last he selected a tarnished metal star that had once shone like gold, and put in in his pocket.

Further into the labyrinthine system of caverns he had not dared penetrate, for fear of being lost. "When I bring Celestia," he said, "to show her the proofs, I'll bring a ball of twine, like people in fairy stories, so that after exploring we can find our way out."

All through that night another person had been journeying through the north woods; but with a different motive. Tommy had hastened toward something which he hoped was ahead; Mrs. Gunsdorf had been fleeing from something which she feared was behind.

Having made a great circle, she came out on the railroad track, and walked the ties. But she did not reach that city to which all were bound until the middle of the afternoon. Then inquiring the way, and hiding her right hand (because of the bloodstains which she had not been able to wash off), she sought and found a certain quiet hotel of which Mary Blackstone had given her the address.

It was to this same address that Tommy, fresh from his discoveries, had hurried for a bath and rest. The rest turned into the same kind of rest that a fallen tree enjoys. He slept like a log on his narrow bed, and was aroused late in the afternoon by a sound of voices.

The partitions of the little north woods' hotel were of thin boards. The occupant of room No. 1 could hear the snorings of the occupant of No. 5—four rooms away. Mary Blackstone had the next room to Tommy's, and to this room came Mrs. Gunsdorf with the hand she dared not show and her story of murder done in the night.

Tommy bursting into the hotel room confronts Mrs. Gunsdorf.

To Tommy it did not matter who had murdered Celestia. She was dead. He listened in a kind of trance to the story of the killing. He heard Mrs. Gunsdorf rejecting the pearl necklace, and he overheard a violent struggle in which Mary Blackstone prevented Mrs. Gunsdorf from killing herself, and got the knife away from her—and a little later he heard Mary saying, "Take this, it's only a quarter of a grain. You'll sleep and forget."

Then he left his room and burst open the door of theirs, and in a voice so weak with passion and horror that it could hardly be heard, he whispered to them the things that they were—and was gone.

A moment later he was running at full speed toward the railroad station. And a few minutes later the two women, in an automobile which Mary had commandeered, were fleeing, as they imagined, for their lives.

To get away—to hide in the woods—to escape to Canada—anywhere for a respite—nothing else seemed to matter to them.

Some man tried to oppose Tommy's entrance to the observation end of Celestia's car, only to be thrown so viciously to one side that he realized he had encountered a force with which he could not cope. And Tommy, half-dead with grief and rage, burst into the car and found himself face to face with Celestia.

She was standing and appeared to be in the best of health; but she had a dazed look, or rather an inattentive look. She did not seem to resent Tommy's violent intrusion in the least, nor to be surprised at it, nor to express any other emotion. The clock in the car indicated a few minutes to five.

During the day Celestia had spoken to half a dozen audiences. Many who had heard her first speech had heard the other five. And the culmination of her upstate tour had been a triumph.

"It's so wonderful," exclaimed Tommy. "I heard—but you're not even hurt, are you?"

"I am going for a drive," said Celestia, in an expressionless voice. "Is the car there?"

"Yes, the car is there," said Tommy.

"I have to go at 5 o'clock."

Parents and the Child

The Mental Pains of Little Ones as Inflicted by Careless Elders

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1915, by Star Company.

CHILDREN have a right to the care-free existence proper to their age.

Parents who think that they recognise this fact feel that in granting to young creatures such toys, comrades and amusements as childhood craves they are discharging their duties along this line.

But there are still other things necessary to make childhood the happy time it should be. One of these is freedom from worries that are outside the province of youth.

Children are supposed to be, as a class, heedless little creatures. But they differ in temperament as much as do their elders. Some small boys and girls have a capacity for suffering that would appall their parents were its existence recognized. And one of the strangest things about children is their reticence.

One would think that the trustful youngster would go to the mother with every imaginary or real worry. On the contrary, children keep most of their most poignant distress to themselves. They may complain of physical discomfort, or pain, but of their spiritual and mental sufferings they say nothing.

One child told a lie and underwent tormenta of conscience for weeks, remembering that lie. He had told it to his mother and had stuck to it with such obstinacy that she believed him. His pride prevented his retracting it. Moreover, his dearly loved mother had said to him:

"I know you are telling me the truth, darling. Were I to learn now that you had lied to me I think it would about kill me."

His was only seven and took her statement literally. In the daytime he could quiet his conscience with the assurance that everybody once in a while told a fib. But at night, alone in the dark, he would brood over that LIE, and each letter of the fearful word was a great black capital.

The knowledge that his mother trusted in him added to his agony. Again and again he would start out of bed, determined to go to her room and sob out his confession. Then the words, "Were I to learn now that you had lied to me I think it would kill me," would recur to him and he would creep miserably back into bed. His mother was not strong. Suppose his confession were really to kill her. Then he would be a murderer!

Does it all sound ridiculous and senseless, oh, wise and sane grown-ups? Of course it does, but let him who has forgotten the imaginations of childhood scoff at it. Not until this poor nervous little boy was man grown did he tell his mother of the agony he had undergone when hardly more than a baby. Together they laughed over the episode. But once it had seemed a tragedy to the small sufferer.

Another child heard her father say that when his ship came in he was going to take his wife around the world.

It was all in fun. But the child believed it. Little did the father suspect how anxiously she listened with dread unspent ans for news of the ship which would take her parents from her and banish her to a boarding school.

As little pitchers have big ears, let us be careful what we pour into them.

(Parents should read these stories—They are entertaining and instructive as well.)

Women with Empty Lives

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

OF course, we all know the old truism that Nature abhors a vacuum—and we dismiss the idea without applying it in any personal way to our own lives. But if a vacuum is abhorrent in science and all the "colorings" and "isms" of books and laboratory life, it is equally so in the vast field of humanity. There is nothing that is more unnatural and harder to endure than a life that is based on nothing and filled with nothing.

The hard-working folk who must grub for their very needs have no right to be half as sorry for themselves as they are for the poor creatures who have to struggle to fill their empty lives. Even if all one's work does not bring in enough money to buy warm clothes and good food and proper housing, there is a certain element of fight and planning and interesting "gambling chances" to make the life of a worker varied and free from monotony. And in the monotony of an empty life there is a very painful kind of misery, of which life's busy workers are mercifully ignorant.

The sufferers from "empty lives" may be divided into several classes. First of all one thinks of the society woman, who, having no main interest, fills up her existence with all sorts of fads and fancies. The worker envies the idler when she sees her lolling in her limousine on the avenue. It is true that the "butterfly" is probably sheltered and protected from all of life's realities, but how is a grown up woman to content herself with froth and frivol and toys when life in the very nature of things is filled with

Besides the society woman there are other sufferers from a vacuum in life. There is the girl of the middle classes, who sits quietly at home and permits her father to do the wage-earning and her mother to do the housework. It never occurs to her that the days she "gets through somehow" might be far more interesting if they were filled quite full of real things instead of treated so that they are like boxes with a few trifles rattling around inside.

Then there is the wife who delegates all the real work of her life to paid help, and never lets her thinking and working powers to the utmost; the young man who prefers to be a waster instead of a worker; the boy who never puts his mind to his tasks, but says instead, "You ought to have fun when you're young," and the middle-aged man who lets himself go to seed and prefers a game of golf to a worth-while day in the office.

All of these people and many more whom you can easily name and classify for yourself, are discontented if not actually unhappy. Life seems to them to be making no real demands on them. They suffer because they feel that there is no place in life that would be empty if they failed to fill it.

It would be simple enough for them to fill a real place in life if they, in turn, let the demands of life fill their own existences; but instead they put a few trifles, a little work, a little pleasure, a little whining and a little impotent struggle into lives that actually crave to hold some big necessities. And in much the same way that an empty shell of a tooth is useless that is not brimful of real interest either decays or stands, an idle, unbeautiful shell. Such a life offends the observer and hurts the owner.

The only cure for a sufferer from emptiness in life is to search for one big thing to do, regardless as to whether that big thing is the absolute congenial choice of his nature. Out of one big interest will spring many little interests. One of these is bound to lead to congenial work. And all of the ennui, all of the boredom, all of the misery and of the railing against fate that beset a person who feels he has no place in the scheme of things will slink away before the fullness of life that is devoted to actually accomplishing something in the world.

Makes Yellow, Bloodshot Eyes Clear and White

If your eyes ever get bloodshot and yellow you can clear them up in half a minute and make them bright and sparkling by dropping a single drop of pure liquid okulite in each eye. It's wonderful how quickly this prescription works and its use is entirely safe, as it contains no cocaine, belladonn, or harmful drugs of any kind or boracic acid, but it cannot possibly smart or injure the eyes. This prescription is fine to use before going out in the evening to make the eyes clear and white. Riker-Jaynes and leading druggists everywhere have it put up and ready for use in 50-cent bottles. A great many leading eye specialists endorse and recommend this same prescription and use it in their own practice.—Advertisement.

WILLARD TELLS OF WHISKEY'S GRAVEYARD

By JESS WILLARD.

Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt. All Rights Reserved.

THE biggest temperance lesson in the world is a walk through whiskey's graveyard of prizefighters. Champions are buried there. In poor pine coffins, unmarked by stone of any kind, you'll find men who were once cheered and admired by their country.

Giants turned into wrecks by drink. Rich men made paupers by the bottle. Famous heroes dumped into obscurity by liquor. Side by side they lie in the potter's field, and if the dead can talk they must be saying, "What fools we were."

To me there's nothing so terribly sad as a drink-smashed prize fighter. They start in life with much strength and health. As they fight in the ring, working like smooth-running, powerful machines, it seems impossible that they'll ever get beat, broken or old.

But whiskey robs them of their strength, speed and their health just as it robs them of their friends. I've seen men still in their thirties who looked a hundred. Bloodshot eyes, trembling hands, wobbling footsteps, and voices that could hardly whine. "For God's sake, give me the price of a drink."

Yesterday I told you something about Dutch Sam and Jack Randall, two fighters who were simply worshipped by the people of England back in the early days of the nineteenth century. Both of them were knocked out by whiskey right at the time they ought to have been at their very best.

Dutch Sam, like many another man of iron frame, was sure that drink couldn't touch him. He used to boast that he could train on "three glasses of gin three times a day." Time after time he went into his man, the ring half drunk and whipped.

There came a day, however, when he found that his strength was water and his bones all chalk. A second-rater named Nosworthy gave the wonderful Jew such a terrible beating that he nearly died from it. Sam went fast after that, and died a wretched, broken man at forty-two.

Everybody knew that Sam had not been trained for the fight, just as they knew that he had been a hard drinker for years. But he was supposed to be invincible, and all England bet on him. Over half a million dollars changed hands as a result of the fight.

Even when Nosworthy was beating him all over the ring, the "wise fellows" put their money on him, sure that Sam was only stalling, and that he would fall to in a little while and deliver his old terrific blows. But whiskey has no punch except for the man that drinks it.

In the ninth round, when it was seen that Nosworthy was winning hands down, the backers of Dutch Sam rushed the ring. Clubs and whips were used, however, and after twelve minutes of rough house, the ring was cleared and the men went at it again.

After thirty-eight rounds Sam was so beaten up that he could not leave the knees of his seconds. The crowd that had been cheering him for years now cursed him. England called him a drunken dog and left him to die in a gutter.

Nosworthy went the same way. He was another strong man that drink couldn't hurt. In less than a year after his fight with Dutch Sam, he fell a victim to consumption, and went to join the Jew in the potter's field.

Jack Randall was never whipped by any fighter, but drink made him take the count. He died at the age of thirty-four, a whiskey wreck. An examination revealed that he had fatty heart and a liver big enough to fill a bucket.

Molineaux, the American negro who won such fame in the English ring, drank just as hard as he fought. Like Randall he died at thirty-four, a shadow of a man, who crawled around begging money from the men who used to win money on him.

Yet this black came within an inch of being champion of England. He fought the great Cribb twice, and lost the first battle by a trick. In the twenty-eight round, Cribb could not leave the knees of his seconds. One of them dashed forward and accused Molineaux of having bullets in his hands. The row gave Cribb time to recover. In the thirty-first round the black threw his man, but fell over him and gave his head a stunning blow. It was this injury that really lost him the battle.

In the second fight Cribb beat him in nineteen minutes. For ten minutes the black looked like a winner, and then his strength went. He had been drinking heavily, and his heart and wind went back on him.

Cribb lived a clean life and died regretted by all England. A popular subscription was gathered to build him a monument, and today he sleeps side by side with the great and honored men of his country.

Pearce, the wonderful Game Chicken, died when he was only thirty-two. No man ever beat him, but drink found him easy. His iron body and steel muscles went quick when consumption got hold of him.

John Gully, on the other hand, had sense enough to see what drink did to champions. He stayed away from it, and when he had made a fortune in the ring, quit the game and went into business. At an age when other fighters were being buried in lonely holes, Gully was a member of Parliament, loved and respected by all who knew him.

One of the most remarkable fighters that ever stepped into the English ring was a little sailor who called himself Jack Scroggins. He was a merry rascal, and looked on fighting as a kid does on a game of marbles.

Poor old Jack went the pace, and after losing his last six or seven fights, became a drunken loafer, glad to pick up pennies.

780 CHILDREN ON RANDIDGE BOAT TRIP

Seven hundred and eighty children left Rowe's Wharf on the Nantasket Beach steamer Rose Standish early today on the first of the annual Randidge Fund excursions. They will spend the day at Hough's Neck.

That the children are to have their excursions this year is due to the efforts of the AMERICAN and the generosity of Manager Frederick L. Last of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company.

The Randidge excursions are usually held under the auspices of the Penal Institutions Department, which sees that city steam Monitor for transporting the children. This year, with the Monitor out of commission for repairs, it looked as if the children might have to go without their excursions, or at least have them delayed.

The AMERICAN urged that something be done, and Manager Last offered the use of one of his steamers.

Penal Institutions Commissioner David R. Shaw and his assistant, former Senator Joseph Leonard, were on the wharf looking after the welfare of the children. The Alexander Peckham Associates brought 150 children, in charge of Alexander Peckham; St. James Parish had 160 children, in charge of Rev. Robert E. Lee, and the parish of Our Lady of Perpetual Help represented by 260 children in charge of Rev. P. di Milla.

In troubles like Eczema, Scaly Skin, Eruptions, Chafings, Sores, Pimples, Rashes and Piles, Cadum Ointment gives gratifying relief.

It stops the itching; it forms a tight covering over the sore places on the skin, thus excluding air and water, and it sets up the healing process. In many instances you can see and feel a distinct improvement in less than 24 hours. Get a tin box of your druggist and try it. Large box 25c.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were below their high for the day in the last hour. War orders were the strongest class. Coppers were firm. Railroads had receded from top prices and most of them were lower. Profit taking was held largely accountable. Crucible Steel and Republic Iron were notably strong in the late afternoon. Among gains in New York were Amalgamated 3, Chino 1, Utah 1¼, Anaconda 1⅜, American Can ⅜, American Smelting 1⅜, Allis-Chalmers 2, U. S. Steel 1⅛, Beet Sugar 1¼, Bethlehem Steel 15 at 262, Crucible Steel 12⅝ at 82¾, Republic Iron ⅝, Republic Iron 2, Westinghouse 3, Willys-Overland 2⅜, New Haven 1 and Pennsylvania ⅛. Among declines were Baltimore & Ohio ⅝, Lehigh Valley 1⅜, St. Paul 1⅛, Union Pacific ¾, Goodrich 1, Maxwell 1 and Baldwin ⅝.

Among gains in Boston were Alaska Gold 1⅛, Butte & Superior ⅛, American Zinc 1⅛, Allouez 2⅜, Calumet & Hecla 17, Copper Range 2, Granby 2⅜, Isle Royale 1¼, North Butte 1, Osceola 5, St. Mary 1⅛, Superior 1⅛, Tamarack 3, U. S. Smelting pref 2⅝, U. S. Smelting 1⅜, New Haven 2 and Mass Gas 1⅜.

The most interesting feature of the New York market was a revival of trading in railroads. They opened stronger, as did war stocks and coppers, and averaged higher until afternoon, although there was realizing on a large scale. The latter finally had some effect, however. There was no demand in the west. Character of the buying indicated the public is in the market. It is understood some powerful financial interests have been accumulating rails for some time. "War orders" continued active when other groups grew quiet.

Some Lake coppers made good gains in Boston. Tamarack was a feature. At one time it was over 17. It is said it may resume its place as a dividend payer. Also Calumet & Hecla may take it over. One big mine is said to have had orders for 2,000 shares. There is prospect, according to goods, of recovery of the immense amount of copper from its waste sands. American Zinc was another strong issue. There was more breadth to trading here and the trend followed New York. In London market copper metals were a little lower. Lead and spelter were unchanged. No improvement in the metal situation in this country was reported. Demand is slow.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

A Great Decision Now Rests with Germany

OUR government, having defined the right of neutrals to the freedom of the seas, now insists that ALL European belligerents shall live up to the letter of the law. It has been said that the extreme of the law is the extreme of injustice.

We have a grave controversy with Great Britain as well as with Germany. Both have violated international law. In our last protest to Great Britain we used the words:

In order to avoid any misunderstanding as to the attitude of the United States, the government informs the British government that in so far as the interests of American citizens are concerned, it will insist upon their rights under the principles and rules of international law, as heretofore established, governing neutral trade in time of war, without limitation or impairment."

This is the language of diplomacy. It is giving notice in legal form that the United States waives none of its rights and will hold any nation that violates them responsible.

England has replied, but not adequately, to this notice. She has not altered in any way her conduct. She is at the present moment holding up more than two hundred American ships bound for neutral countries.

England is not blockading those neutral countries, and her interference with our commerce with them is therefore without warrant in international law.

Her only response to our protest is that the courts and diplomacy are open to us seeking redress for outrages committed in flat violation of international law as we construe it.

But in the case of Germany, for like violation of international law, the United States served notice in these words:

"Injuring the lives of neutrals as well as their property . . . if persisted in, would constitute an unpardonable offence. . . . The government of the United States will contend for the freedom of the seas, from whatever quarter violated, without compromise AND AT ANY COST. . . . Repetition by the commanders of German naval vessels of acts in contravention of those rights must be regarded by the government of the United States, when they affect American citizens, as DELIBERATELY UNFRIENDLY."

This is the language of war, not of diplomacy. It does not merely assert that the United States cannot remain on terms of friendship with a nation that persists in certain conduct; it expressly states that our rights, if violated, will be maintained "at any cost."

Grover Cleveland in his memorable warning to Great Britain in the Venezuela case, in 1895, used language of like import, but with this very great difference: The language was used in a message to Congress, which alone has the power to declare war. It was a recommendation by the President to Congress. In the present case the ultimatum, not in form but in fact, is sent by the President direct to the offending nation.

Our protests to Great Britain have been answered in a way that can only be described as evasive and disingenuous. She maintains a blockade of our commerce, pleading the necessities of war. Germany, in reply to our earlier protests, also pleaded the necessities of war, in retaliation against England, but offered an absolute guarantee of immunity from attack to all American ships, and promised that Americans on neutral ships should pass through the war zone in safety if the neutral ships were plainly marked. She also suggested reference of any other questions at issue to an international tribunal, The Hague, for instance.

In all foreign controversies, the American people have always unitedly supported the President under the ancient rule, "Our country! May she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong!"

Should this situation go to an extreme the duty will devolve upon Congress to decide whether the United States is to go to war, if necessary to maintain the freedom of the seas, against one belligerent, and not against both belligerents, both of which deny our neutral rights. Yet we could not go to war against one offending belligerent without becoming, in effect, the ally of the other belligerent, also an offender against the same international law.

The notice that the United States government "will contend for the freedom of the seas, from whatever quarter violated, without compromise and at any cost," obviously applied to Great Britain as well as to Germany, although the message was sent to Germany alone.

The power of declaring war under our Constitution is confided to Congress alone. It will decide, in the last resort—if there be new cause for offence—whether the United States shall hurl themselves into the maelstrom of European war by offensive measures against one belligerent, or against both, to maintain the letter of international law.

England has shown no disposition to lessen the severity of her unlawful blockade of our commerce in view of our emphatic protest. Germany has, in the past month, as the President very well points out, shown her desire and intention to lessen the severity of her submarine warfare, so far as it affects neutral citizens, and even non-combatants on enemy ships.

We may yet owe to Germany the happy issue out of this critical situation. The first decision now rests with her.

Would Call Editorial to Attention of Ambassadors

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Being a Philadelphian, it is only occasionally that I happen to give myself the benefit of reading your excellent paper. Today, in the same chance way, I purchased the issue of this date. Your editorial upon the last note of our government to Germany arrested my attention and was very carefully read.

I had been favorably impressed by the change in tone and style of the language used by Secretary Lansing as contrasted with that of recent previous ones on the same subject, until I finished reading your editorial.

Rather reluctantly my views became modified and I came to the conclusion that there was great force and weight in your line of argument, particularly upon the question of international law. As a lawyer must do, I realized what visionary matter the latter is, especially when applied to circumstances arising out of the action of those absolutely new and until recently absolutely unheard of implements of warfare—the submarine and aeroplane.

It is evident that some mutual understanding under these conditions must be arrived at before any rigid rule of international law can be formulated applicable to the novel nature of the disputes thus arising. Your idea of the neutral nations getting together quickly and endeavoring to force the determination of these questions by arbitration is most excellent.

If you will pardon my apparent presumption, I would suggest a copy of your editorial be forwarded to the President and to the ambassadors at Washington of the contending nations, as well as to those of neutral nations. The present situation is so grave throughout the world that it excuses the presentation of a solitary individual opinion like mine, which cannot have much weight, unless it be conceded to be a unit in a vast mass of similar thoughts, and I am sure that this justifying concession must be made in the present instance.

Trusting that you will facilitate a very wide circulation of the editorial in question, I am,

Yours, very truly,
F. CARROLL BREWSTER, JR.

Keep Your Eyes on the Heights

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Writes of the Secret of Making Life Beautiful

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

ARE you wise or unwise?

This does not mean, Do you know much of book lore and profound philosophies? There are many men in the world who are called wise in these things, yet who utterly lack wisdom in the way of right living. To be wise in daily life means to understand how to obtain and how to give the greatest amount of happiness out of each day.

This life may be compared to a string of beads. Each day is a precious bead, and if you tear it away from the string and crush it under your foot it is ruined and lost, and your string is just so much the shorter. If you slip the day gently off its string and place it carefully in a box, those who come after you may enjoy its intrinsic value.

Every time that you crush under the foot of gloom, anger, idleness or worry is a bead crushed and lost. All our lives are composed of little events, little cares, little anxieties, little duties; the big events only occur occasionally; the big undertakings must be approached by small undertakings.

Do not for an instant imagine that you can be great in large things if you are petty in small ones. When you awake in the morning realize that your mental attitude, your voice, your face, your words and your thoughts will have a certain influence upon the lives of those about you, in your home and in your place of business.

No matter how troubled you may feel over matters, resolve to carry light, radiance and enthusiasm with you as you go through the day. Develop your will, shake off the fetters which seem to bind you and make a beginning in constructive thought. Refuse to fret, find fault or worry.

Say to yourself, 'This day shall be a bright and successful day for me; this world is a good world, and peace, power and prosperity belong to me. Invisible helpers are near and they are bringing me my soul's desire." Remember that every thought you send out from your mind is creating your future environment, and making what we call Karma for yourself and influencing the lives of others.

Stop right now and ask yourself what use you made of yesterday and what you are going to do with today.

Just what are you doing with the beautiful years of this brief, beautiful life on earth? Just how are you using your mind?

Some years ago there were four children reared on a Western farm. The farm was never especially valuable and was never properly developed. All the children married and went into their own homes. The time came when the parents grew old and one died; then came the idea of dividing the "property." Two of the children signed away all their rights in favor of a third, who was remaining in the old home.

But the fourth member of the family entered a wild protest, claiming that the matter was unjust and unfair, and finally an aged parent was haled into court and a feud and enmity and bitterness and hatred which covered a period of fifteen years ensued over that wretched little property, the value of which could not exceed $5,000.

Imagine such a wretched use of beautiful life and beautiful thought material. The same amount of energy used constructively would have enabled the troublemaker to have gone forth and created a profitable business of his own. Family quarrels over money affairs are the most ignoble and detestable form of domestic vice, yet all over the land we may find homes and lives ruined and wasted by these mean and despicable quarrels.

"Like a kitten walking over the keys
Is the animal nature of man and brain;
At an advanced student improves the tone of music
So an advanced soul improves the harmony of thought."

There are thousands of human beings, many of them believing themselves to be wise, cultured and educated, whose minds day in and day out do no more in the making of an eternal harmony of life than do the kittens walking over keys.

To worry and fret about the weather; to have continual anxiety about what you eat and its effect upon you; to be afraid of draughts and germs; to fuss over money affairs and dwell on thoughts of the injustice of the world as you see it illustrated in the prosperity of vice and the suffering of virtue; to resent the good fortune of your neighbor and excuse the thought, imagining it a high sense of justice—all this is making discordant sounds, like the "kitten walking over keys," and is wasting the two priceless things in the world—mind and time.

Right about face! Set your eyes upon the heights, believe in God's overruling power and in your own divine self—to do, to have and to be that which you desire.

Inklings and Thinklings

LIFE IN BOSTON.

A Composite Picture From Various Current Stories.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTER—Estelle, a girl from the country, is in her room in Mrs. Muggins' Select Theatrical Boarding House. Petey Flannigan, son of the Pig Iron King, is in his room in the back Bay.

The telephone bell in Petey's room tinkled.

Telephone bells always tinkle in stories. Our own experience of them is that they tinkle about as much as a pneumatic riveter.

"Hello," came the silvery voice over the wire. "Is this the Energetic Film Company? "d like to get a job as a star in the movies."

Petey's voice was very indistinct and evidently the girl at the other end (you win; it was Estelle) thought he said "yuh," which is the great American rendering of "yes" on the telephone. So she continued, "I'll be at your offices at 4 o'clock sharp."

Didn't we tip you off before to keep your eye on Fate. That dame is up to all kinds of tricks. See how she crossed the wires and got Estelle the wrong number. Or was it Fate? Could Estelle have—but no, no, we'll leave it up to the Fate Lady.

THE OPTIMIST

By Jane McLean

Today has been a day of woe,
Not anything of joy has come
To smile at me; the wind did blow
And my pet bird was strangely dumb.
The sun forgot to shine, and gray
Clouds frowned and lowered all the day.

But now that night has fast locked in
The hours that passing dragged so slow
The raindrops on the roof's red tin
Sing that I may be glad to know
That though the day has brought me sorrow
What joy may not be mine tomorrow?
